Seventh-day Adventist Church
Thirteenth Sabbath Offering Dec. 2, 1963 —

The overflow offering taken up on Sabbath, Dec. 21 1963 will go to the Southern African Division, and literally scores of small homes will be raised in South Africa as a result of contributions made by local Adventists and their fellow church members in the United States and Canada.

The homes which will be modern, stout, efficient structures will replace less sturdy native huts which in many instances have served national workers in mission outposts. Superintendent Mrs. Vaden Townsend stated that the number of national workers in Africa has increased rapidly over the past few years, outdistancing the existing accomodations on mission stations. Though well educated and holding responsible positions many of these consecrated workers have had to be content with far - from desirable living quarters.

R. H. Pierson, president of the South African Division Church, reports that Sabbath school members in 19 countries comprising his area, now number nearly 400,000. The number is increasing at the rate of approximately 31,000 members each year.

Last Sabbath Dec. 28th, the communion service was observed during the 11 o'clock service. Subject — "Self Examination' Key Texts — I Cor. 11: 28, 2, "But, let a man examine himself"

Organ At St. Ann's Strikes Again

The large Estey reed - organ at St. Ann's Episcopal Church, Appomattox, has struck again! Its victim this time was a very small squirrel of undetermined age, which was discovered in the 'works' of the organ on Saturday, December 21. Having been informed by his daughter, Lillian occasional organist, that one note was sounding constantly, the Rev. Jack Adams had stopped by the church to attempt necessary repairs. Upon removing a part of the organ case, to his amazement, Mr. Adams found the remains of a baby squirrel. It should be noted here that the previous victims of the organ included one rat — rather large and smelly and one adult squirrel, whose demise fortunately occurred during a co'd wave —consequently it had not decomposed to the point of being unpleasantly fragrant.

So far as is known, the organ at St Ann's is one of few two manual (3 keyboard) Estey reed organs still being used. Correspondence with the Estey Organ Company, one-time manufacturers of pipe organs and reed organs in Brattleboro, Vermont, presently manufacturing of electronic instruments, has failed to establish the age of this minor masterpiece of musical Americana.

Whereas the usual one keyboard reed organ has two or two and one-half sets of reeds, this one has three sets (for the swell organ (upper keyboard), three and three-fourths sets on the great organ (lower keyboard), and two comp'ete sets of pedal reeds of 20 notes. In addition there are the usual couplers for the pedals and keyboard.

The organ was acquired for St. Ann's by Mr. Waller Dresser, who also served as organist for some time.

It must be reported that while cleaning and repairing the organ, Rev. Adams almost became the fourth known victim. While making an adjustment in the wind in the center of the works, he was struck down, when both keyboards fell on his head — the results of which are as yet unknown. It is rumored, however that the varmint of the organ case was blistered by his words of advice to the organ following its unprovoked attack.

The tone of this instrument while not equivalent to that of a pipe - organ, is considered superior, locally and liturgically, to many if not most electro-tonic organs. It is readily adaptable for the accompaniment of hymns, plainsong, and the Anglican Responses used in Episcopal services.

What To Do When Turkey's All Gone

G. P. Brannan, store owner on the Red House road, found a possum trying to get in his basement door on Friday, Dec. 27. Ole Br'er Possum had already irritated a hen who had given him a peck or two and had set up a squawk that aroused the Brannon family. So Brannon brought the 'possum to town thinking that someone might have had enough turkey and would want a new delicacy for year - end eating. The 'possum kept 'grinning' at all to whom Brannon made the offer, but he had few takers. Finally, Jake Petty employee of C. Lewis Mc-Dearmon's Texaco, Inc., was contacted, and he accepted the 'possum — saying that his children in particular, would enjoy it. Most popular combination it seems, is sweet potatoes and possum roasted in a slow oven.

Bear Reported Near Evergreen

With the "White Christmas" have come reports from Evergreen of the sighting of a bear and bear tracks in the snow. The J. F. Hamilton report that several residents have mentioned to them that bear tracks are again evident. Tracks seem to be thought he saw a bear on the railroad tracks near the village. The TIMES-VIRGINIAN is unable to precipate a telephone call if anybody does sight bears or bear tracks. According to one biologist the TIMES consulted, it is possible that a "stray" bear may have come into this neighborhood. Bear are sometimes found in the more mountainous sections of the state.
